

Edward J. Dudash is a Senior Scientist at the Naval Surface Warfare Center (NSWC) in Dahlgren Virginia. He received a B.A. in Mathematics from California State College, a M.S. in Mathematics from West Virginia University, and has done additional graduate work in Applied Mathematics, Physics, and Engineering. He is currently a software engineering advisor for the System Certification and Fleet Operations Division supporting the AEGIS Program. He has 25 years experience in various aspects of software engineering, primarily related to real-time DoD systems.